Curriculum Guide K-8

This material is designed to provide the classroom professional some guidance as to when to introduce and develop concepts in each subject area. It is only a guide, not a rule book or complete course of study.

Although the material is presented under various subject matter headings, it is important to remember that "skills and abilities do not grow in isolation from content. In all subjects, students develop skills in using language and other symbol systems; they develop the ability to reason; they undergo experiences that lead to emotional and social maturity. Students master these skills and abilities through observing, listening, reading, talking, and writing about science, mathematics, history, and the social sciences, the arts and other aspects of our intellectual, social and cultural heritage. As they learn about their world and its heritage they necessarily deepen their skills in language and reasoning and acquire the basis for emotional, aesthetic and social growth. They also become aware of the world around them and develop an understanding and appreciation of the interdependence of the many facets of that world."*

1. Art is a deeply meaningful language we read, speak and use everyday whether we realize it or not. That's why we need to teach art as a language— to be "read" and "spoken" with some understanding and ability.

   a. To "read" art
      (1) seeing special meanings in our own life experiences
      (2) understanding special meanings in the art of others

   b. To "speak" art
      (1) making our own artwork
      (2) making our own statements about others' art

   c. To "teach" art
      (1) helping students to "speak" their own ideas and feelings through art
      (2) helping students to "read"—understand and appreciate—the art statements of their own and others

2. Art and the Curriculum

   a. Art can be taught separately, and art can be yoked to all subjects through the whole school curriculum.

The Art Process and Product

1. Who am I? How do I see and experience my world?

   a. Give students fresh new experiences around which to build their art statements. Ask them to look for, feel, listen to, try: sizes, shapes, lines, textures, colors, groupings, designs, etc.

      For instance:
      (1) take a walk and observe inside/outside the school, front/back yard, alleys, ranches, parks, mountains/sky/prairie, downtown, machines, junk yards, rodeos, etc.
      (2) examine wood, earth, stones, grass, bones, leather, sand, cloth, flowers, sidewalk, cracks, tree branches, bicycle spokes, clouds, machine parts, pets, etc.
      (3) bring favorite things from home
      (4) look in family scrapbooks and photograph books
      (5) collect town stories, family stories
      (6) talk about/do favorite hobbies, sports
      (7) go to a grocery store (look for shapes, colors, lines)
      (8) use themes like current local events, festivals, seasons
      (9) set up interesting "arrangements" in the classroom

2. What was important and interesting to me? Why? What am I going to say about it?

   a. select favored parts of the visual and felt experiences

3. How am I going to say it? (subject, materials, tools, techniques)

   a. try/make/fashion/produce something from what was experienced
   b. make it bigger than/smaller than/same size
   c. make it two-dimensional, three-dimensional
   d. work individually or in groups

4. O.K. I've said it! (art piece is made)

a. I have one-of-a-kind things to say through my art
b. if I have to be graded, will it be for basic effort & attitude, completing the task, growing originality, fluency of ideas
c. will I be encouraged to evaluate my work by my own feelings and criteria, as well as what others think
d. will I be encouraged (as I get older) to ask for helpful evaluation from others as I perceive the need for it

5. What important things am I going to experience, feel and say next?

Physical education is an integral part of the total development of the individual through the medium of human movement. It provides for reinforcement of activities done in other subject areas. It recognizes that each child is unique and matures and develops at different times to different ability and skill levels. Physical education is the "cornerstone" for good health and should develop sound health knowledge, values and attitudes that last a lifetime.
